Introduction

Indian hawkers serviced the rural and more remote areas, selling drapery, haberdashery and sundry goods that could not readily be obtained outside towns that functioned as rural service centres. The hawkers travelled in semi-structured circuits, calling in at various farms and stations, as well as filling orders placed during previous visits. In many instances, while working on their own accounts, they functioned as a travelling retailing arm of town-based stores with whom they enjoyed close, near symbiotic, business relationships. Not surprisingly, these hawkers experienced accidents and illness while travelling, often leading to fatalities both while on the road, or death while patients in local hospitals. Many hawkers gave up their mobile retail businesses, purchased land, and took up farming, eventually dying of old age on their property.

This study is the first systematic survey of burials and cremations of Indian hawkers in any geographical context in Australia. Its geographical coverage is the Southern Riverina and North-Eastern Victoria (Figure 15). The temporal end point of the coverage of this document has been arbitrarily set to 1952, the year the last major figure of the Indian hawker community died. This compilation also augments a survey of the evidence of hawkers in the southern Riverina and northern Victoria, as well as an examination of the cremation rites of Hindu hawkers as they manifested themselves in late nineteenth and early twentieth century Australia.

The emphasis of this study is on the Punjabi males that engaged in hawking, market gardening (and later also farming) as well as rural labour. Omitted in this compilation are their wives, inasmuch as they were Australian women as well as their Australian-born children.

The Sources

The data presented in the table below have been compiled through systematic searches of digitised newspapers, the Victorian Government Gazette, New South Wales Government Gazette; and the state archives, as well as searches of Births, Deaths and Marriages on-line databases of New South Wales (Figure 1) and Victoria. In the following compilation, the actual place of death is given as well as the location of the cremation or burial. In a number of cases the sources are silent on whether the body was cremated, or even where it was buried. On occasion, excerpts of the historic cemetery registers were available (Figure 2). The full documentation for each individual is provided in the relevant endnote.

The newspaper reporting of the various deaths is very patchy, ranging from in depth commentary as in the case of Devan Singh (1905, n° 15) or Gharne Singh (1935, n° 78) to minimal commentary, as in the case of Patti Singh (1909, n° 22). In addition, there are references to some deaths, which are not reported in the newspapers at all, such as Pooran Singh (1923, n° 53) and Juan Singh (1931, n° 73). The pattern of reporting seems to be, understandably, more detailed in the early days, because the topic was novel, or, as in the case of the reporting of Devan Singh’s (1905, n° 15) cremation at Albury, which was geographically widespread because it fitted into a national debate on cremation in general. Some of the later cremations are also reported in more depth, presumably because the papers, by and large, contained more pages and thus could use more copy. Reporting is at a minimum during World War I, when column space was limited, and reports of cremations had to compete with war news and lists of war fund donations.

The names

The spelling of the hawkers’ names in the various newspapers needs to be read with a grain of salt. In the main, it is a phonetic representation by the correspondents and editors, and the Australian public in general, who struggled especially with the rendering of soft vowels. Examples are: Esoor Singh (n° 65) whose name is commonly rendered ‘Esser,’ or Gurumukh Singh (n° 92), whose name is commonly spelled ‘Goormac Singh.’ Where possible, names were anglicised as they better rolled off the tongue. Thus Pollah Singh (n° 53), at least in his early period, was also known as Paul Singh.14 While Harnan Singh was occasionally bastardised to Harna-man Singh15 and anglicised as Hermann Singh.16 Finally, there are names that are descriptive or play on the original names. For example, Noor Partap Singh (n° 110) was often rendered ‘Newpartapa’ but colloquially called ‘Spud’ as his name rhymed, for Australian ears, with ‘New Potato.’17 In other cases, such as that of Sakoor (Takoor) Singh (n° 25), the general appellation was more denigrating: he was also known as ‘Grubbo.’18 Where possible, the spelling of the names as listed in Table 2 has been standardised based on accepted spelling (SikhiWiki, 2014). The spelling used in the original sources as well as alternate spellings that may have been encountered, are given in the respective endnotes.

Locations of death and burial

The locations of death of the 90 individuals covered by this study are varied. The majority of the those listed here died in hospital, either because of injury or illness during old age,19 while others died on their own farms.20 As befits the nature of their itinerant work21 many died on the circuit from natural causes while camping at a reserve22 or someone’s farm,23 or even on the road itself, such as Sham Singh (n° 82), who was found next to his hand barrow on the Moama to Echuca road, or Gurmukh Singh (n° 92), who was found dead in his motor truck on the Oxley Road. Others died from accidents at a camping reserve or on the road. Special cases are Chanda Singh (n° 19, †1907), Cheri Khan (n° 26, †1910), Lal Singh (n° 63, †1929), and Patarp Singh (n° 109, †1951) who were all declared to have committed suicide, a testament to the mental health issues caused by enforced solitude and lack of companionship, as well as living a life on the periphery of colonial Australian society.

The individuals considered here are both of Muslim and of Hindu / Sikh faith. The burial customs for these vary significantly: Muslims are buried, while Hindu / Sikh are cremated. Table 2 lists all hawkers in the order of their death, irrespective of faith.

Muslim burials

In the absence of dedicated Islamic burial grounds in most towns, Muslim hawkers were buried in the general community cemeteries, either in an unsectarian / non-denominational section, or in sections where the relevant Christian denominations allowed it to occur (Table 1).

On record are Mohammed Khan (1899, n° 6) who was buried at Wangaratta; Cheri Khan (1910, n° 26) at Tallangatta; and Hummo Khan (1945, n° 98) at Narrandera. Moota Khan (1910, n° 28), Mahomet Ali (1910, n° 29) and Hadj Sher Khan (1911, n° 30) were all interred in the Moama cemetery, with Moota Kahn buried in the Methodist portion. Buried in the 'other denominations' or 'non-denominational' sections were Kareem Bux (1899, n° 8) in the Numurkah General Cemetery and Barakeet Ali Khan (1947, n° 102) at Leeton. Boota Khan (1913, n° 33), Sahib Dad (1948, n° 105) and Junga Malik (1934, n° 77) were buried in the Wagga Wagga cemetery, with the former two known to have been interred in the general section.

Only Albury had a dedicated Muslim section, which had been set aside since September 1905. Alas, the dedication of that area occurred too late for the first Muslim burial to occur in Albury, that of Noor Deen (1905, n° 16). He was interred in the Methodist section of Albury’s General Cemetery, albeit at its edge. On the other hand, the 1931 burial of Peir Buksh (1931, n° 71), could have occurred in the dedicated Muslim section, but in the event took place in the section of the Albury cemetery. The grave is not located in the unsectarian section, as would be expected, but in the section reserved for ‘other denominations’.

Hindu and Sikh burials

The first authorised cremation in Australia, that of the body of the Chinese Gee Ti was carried out at the Victorian Quarantine Station at Point Nepean on 11 December 1892 (Anonymous, 1892b). As Gee Ti had suffered from leprosy, the cremation occurred for public health reasons (Anonymous, 1892b). Indeed, as outlined by Justice Williams on 1 December of that year, anyone who “…desired to … burn the bodies of the dead they might do so as long as they liked, providing they did it decently and without making a nuisance. They might continue to carry it on unless Parliament interfered to stop it” (Williams, cited in Anonymous, 1892a). In Victoria, formal legislation, governing the establishment and operation of crematoria, was not enacted until 1903 (Cremation Act 1903).

While the cremation of people of European extraction was slow due to the ongoing debate surrounding the moral and practical aspects of the practice, the Indian community made cremation a common, albeit ethnically and culturally distant, occurrence. As a rule, members of the Hindu and Sikh faiths, insisted on the cremation of their dead. For that, they had to obtain, on a case by case basis, the permission of the police, the relevant Colonial, and after 1901 the State, health officer and, in many cases, also the local inspector of public nuisances.

The first confirmed cremation of an Indian hawkers in the study area, was that of Boota Singh who was cremated at Pyramid Hill on 18 May 1894 (n° 3). His death was widely reported throughout south-eastern Australia (Figure 4). The event was described thus:

CREMATING A HINDOO HAWKER. A Hindoo hawker named Boota Singh, well known in this district, died on Friday morning at the Royal Hotel, Kerang, (says the Observer) from inflammation of the lungs. Dr. Austin who was attending the deceased certified to the cause of death, and Boota Singh’s compatriots immediately commenced preparations to burn the body in pursuance of the ancient rites of the Hindoo religion in order that his ashes, might be sent to India and there thrown into the sacred waters of the Ganges. On applying to Senior constable French for leave to burn the body the Indians were referred to the Board of Public Health to whom; a wire was sent in the afternoon. A reply having been received, agreeing to the cremation, the body, which was saturated with butter, was placed on a shutter covered with a white cloth, and was put into Mr. Cadush’s buggy. The cortege then drove down past the cemetery into a position handy to some dry logs and timber. The Hindoos then; placed two logs parallel, close together, and started a fire either end of the logs. They took the body off the shutter, merely enveloped in the white cloth, and placed it on the blazing logs, with its feet towards the east, face upwards. Another log was placed on the corpse, and then more dry wood was piled on. Mr. Guy, at the request of the Hindoos, then read portion of the funeral service, and one of the Hindoos asked everyone present to throw a stick on the fire. This was done, and those present, at the instigation of the Hindoos, left the pyre; being still burning. - According to custom, the Hindoos returned next morning, and saw that the body was completely burnt (Anonymous, 1894c)

Usually the cremation occurred on the same day of the death and at the location or nearest community where the death occurred. Exceptions to this are three deaths that occurred in the vicinity of Albury and where the bodies were brought for cremation at Albury’s unsectarian burial ground off Wagga Road (now Jelbart Park), which had been dedicated for that purpose in September 1905. These were Atchar Singh (1917, n° 41), who died at Gerogery; Tarum (‘Narra’) Singh (1918, n° 44), who died at Kergunyah; and Naran Singh (1933, n° 75), who died at Dederang. This attests to the significance of Albury as a rural service centre and to the relevance that the unsectarian burial ground had to the Indian community of the region.

In some cases, the deceased were buried by the authorities, but later, with permission, exhumed and cremated according to Hindu custom. Examples for this are Gundah Singh (1909, n° 24), Salah Singh (1910, n° 27), Rudda Singh (1920, n° 47), Sunda Singh (1933, n° 74), and Dalale Singh Gill (1934, n° 76). By and large, the cremation sites went unmarked. In the case of the unsectarian burial ground in Albury (Figure 14), some grave markers existed in 1939, but had been removed by the mid 1960s. A few of the deceased Hindu or Sikh hawkers, however, were not cremated, but buried in Christian sections of local cemeteries. These where Charles Sunder Singh (n° 56), who was interred in the Roman Catholic section of the Wagga Wagga cemetery in 1925; Patarp Singh (n° 87), who was buried in the Methodist section of the Hay cemetery in 1938; Gungah Singh (n° 100), who was buried in the Corowa cemetery; Inder Singh (n° 96), whose final resting place is in the Wagga Wagga cemetery; and Sundah Singh (n° 101) and Patarp Singh (n° 109) whose remains were interred in the Henty Cemetery.
Almost all accounts mention that the burnt human remains in the ashes and especially the teeth were retrieved to be sent to the relatives back in India, so that they, in due course, could commit them to the Ganges. The disposal of the rest of the ashes, both charcoal and human bone, is often not mentioned.
Age structure

We have age at death stated for fourth fifths (81.3%) of the deceased hawkers listed. This allows us to examine the data in different ways. For example, the Immigration Restriction Act 1901 limited the opportunities for Indian hawkers to recruit relatives to enter the trade. Even though they were British subjects, they too had to submit to the arbitrary and discriminating dictation test. This is well reflected in the distribution of the ages the Indian hawkers had at the time the act was passed (Figure 5). Only a very small number was in the age cohorts below 25 years (i.e. born after 1875). These were presumably children of hawkers admitted before 1901. This is further confirmed by the observation, that the ages of about 180 persons applying for hawking licences in the Redfern Police Court on 11 January 1898 ranged from 21 to 50 years, with the majority being 25 to 35 years old.

The greatest influx of Indian hawkers occurred in the mid to late 1890s. Considering the distribution of the year of birth in five-year cohorts (Figure 5), about half (49.3%) were in the 20 to 30 year cohort, with a bit more than a quarter (27.8%) in the 35 and 40 year cohort. This is hardly surprising as both can be considered the prime working age of men.

The average age at death of all Indian hawkers is 61.1±17.9 years (n=55). This compares well with the average for Australian males in 1920, which is 61.9±15.8 years (n=21,607). The difference is not significant given the huge discrepancy in sample sizes. The distribution of the age at death, however, shows a bi-polar distribution (Figure 6), with a distinct drop in the 55 year old class. The distribution is even more skewed once we deduct those who died from accidents and those who committed suicide. Now the number of deaths rises strongly from the 55 to the 60 year age class. Indeed, the average age at death of the hawkers dying from natural causes is 63.2±18.0 years (n=59), while the average age for those dying from other causes is 50.4±14.1 years (n=12).
There are, however, some recorded discrepancies in ages at death. For example, Devan ('Dingh') Singh (nº 15) who died in 1905 was reportedly either 35 or 40 years of age (see relevant entry in Table 2). Similar discrepancies have been recorded for Jundar ('Gundar') Singh (nº 21) (30 / 33 years) and Naran Singh (nº 75) (57 / 59 years), while the discrepancies are larger for Shenak Singh (nº 79) (80 / 88 years) and even larger for Gundah Singh (nº 24) (45 / 58 years). While the majority of these discrepancies only occur in the written and/or archival record, on occasion there are other manifestations. Examples are Sunda Singh (nº 74) where the records state him to be 77 years of age at death, but the grave marker claims him to be 88 years of age (Figure 11), and Dalale Singh Gill (nº 76), where the cemetery register noted him to be 64 years old, yet the grave marker states 68 (Figure 12).
In addition to individual variation in age, there appear to be more systemic influences at work. Figure 9 provides the frequency distribution of the terminal digit of a person’s age at death. There is no biological reason that adults with the terminal digit 1’ in their age (i.e. aged 21, 31, 41, 51, etc.) should die more frequently than, say, those with a terminal digit of ‘6’ (i.e. aged 26, 36, 46, 56 etc.). Statistically, all digits have the same probability (10%) of being represented in a population (Figure 9). Yet, the two distributions (observed vs expected) are statically very significantly different ($\chi^2=37.905$, df=9, $p<0.0001$). The population of Punjabi men dying in the Southern Riverina and north-eastern Victoria shows disproportionately (26.2%) more men with a ‘round’ age of death (40, 50, 60 etc.) which is statistically significant ($P<0.001$), as are the percentage deviations for life ages ending on ‘5’ and ‘2’.

$y = 0.9003x - 1670.9$
$R^2 = 0.62055$

Figure 8. Correlation of year of death and age at death of the Indian hawkers listed in this compilation (n=90).

Similar disproportions have been noted among the grave markers of Roman legionnaires, which were interpreted as lack of numeracy skills and also as a lack of documentation of genuine birth records. It is probable that the discrepancies among the Punjabi men are less likely caused by a lack of numeracy skills but more by a lack of need to know one’s age during adulthood, as well as cultural reasons of age rounding. This is modulated by the fact that Punjabi men in Australia had a less close contact with their Anglo-Celtic host community, and that they ‘kept to themselves’ (i.e. were marginalised by mainstream colonial society). Consequently, unless the Punjabi men self-nominated their ages or age estimates at the time of admission to a hospital, for example, the ages given in the death certificates are the views of those who registered the deaths, based on mere approximations as well as any general information.

In view of the latter discussion, some of the previous comments on the age structure need to be read cum grano salis.

Deaths and cremations of Indian Hawkers in the Southern Riverina and North-Eastern Victoria until 1952

Acknowledgments

I am indebted to Deanna Duffy (Spatial Area Network, Charles Sturt University, Albury) for the data plot that forms the basis of Figure 15 as well as for Figure 4. The following kindly responded to requests for information on the location of selected hawkers’ burials in various cemeteries: Anita Bartlett (Moama Cemetery Research Officer); Leo Coyle (Walbundrie); Wendy Cunningham (Numurkah Wunghnu Cemetery Trust); Margaret Houlihan (Federation Council, Corowa); Bronwyn Jacka (Violet Town Cemetery Trust); Sarah Jones (Assets/Mapping Officer, Lockhart Shire, Lockhart); Leanne Mark (Berrigan Shire Council); Neil Martin (Temora Family History Group); Therese Murphy (Hay Shire Council); Jan Parker (Yarrawonga and District Cemetery Trust); Clive Polkinghorne (Griffith Genealogical and Historical Society); Heather Rendle (Echuca Cemetery Trust); Wendy Senti (Leeton Family and Local Historical Society); Peter Seymour (Wangaratta Cemetery, Rural City of Wangaratta); Terry Walsh (Beechworth Cemetery Trust) and Shane Wilkinson (Wangaratta Cemetery, Rural City of Wangaratta). Their kind assistance is gratefully acknowledged.
Endnotes

1. (Laidlaw, 2009; Spennemann, in prep.-b).—For classification of hawking in terms of other itinerant professions, see (Gonzalez, Spennemann, & Allan, 2017).

2. (Spennemann, in prep.-b).

3. (Spennemann, subm.).

4. This document was initially conceptualised as a background study in support of an assessment of the history and management of the ‘unsectarian burial ground’ in Albury, the first formally gazetted Indian cremation ground in New South Wales (Spennemann, in prep.-d).—see also (Spennemann, in prep.-b).

5. See Spennemann (2017).—See also Spennemann (subm.).

7. Examples are Dinah Rhoda Sher Khan, daughter of Alfred Morgan and Mary Ann (née Williams), who died aged 38 at Echuca in 1931 (Vic BDM 13811/1931); and Emily Jane Sheer Khan, who died in 1919, aged 60, also at Echuca (Vic BDM 6493/1919).

8. Examples of children are Naby Bux Berdda (Budder) Deen, child of Naby Meera Bux and Alice Emma née Campbell, who died aged 8 months at Numurkah in 1909 (Vic BDM birth 21811/1909; death 10045/1909). Another child, Zarm Deen, was born in 1914 (Vic BDM 15313/1914).

A Myrtle Nabi Bux (Buksh).—† late 1903.—Father Nabi Bux; mother Alice (NSW BDM 14633/1903).—Myrtle Nabi Bux was buried in the cemetery of Cummergunja Cummergunja Aboriginal Mission (Bartlett, 2017b).—No information of the 1903 death of anyone named ‘Bux’ in the Moama area can be found in the newspapers of the day. At the time of writing it is unclear whether Myrtle Nabi Bux is another child of the previously named couple.

Another example is Gouhl Mohammed Deen, son of Khir (Khair) Deen and Ada Rose née Burroughs, who died, aged 2 months, at Euroa in in 1910 (Vic BDM birth 27118/1910; death 12565/1910).—Rose Burroughs, daughter of Thomas Burrows and Kate née Jenkins (*Clifton Hill 1884 † Brunswick East 1960)(Vic BDM 1885/1960) had married Khir (Khair) Deen in 1906 (Vic BDM 8024/1906). Khir (Khair) Deen (ca 1863) died in Brunswick East in 1948 (Vic BDM 10100/1948).—Other offspring of the same marriage were Albert Rupert ( 1907 Shepparton) and registered by a racist larrakia clerk as ‘Newbebe’ [sic] (Vic BDM 26609/1907; † Brunswick East Vic BDM 19443/1962), Cashehe (*Kushee) Mohammed who died aged 20 in East Melbourne (Vic BDM birth 10525/1909; death 2429/1930); Gouhl Mahomed’s twin brother Ameen (Vic BDM 27121/1910); Aisha (Vic BDM 2253/1915) and Marion Rita (Vic BDM 29297/1916). Umber Khan.—† 1937 Echuca (Vic BDM 18046/1937).—Father Galam Hayder Khan; mother Mary Eliz (Witney) (Vic BDM 18046/1937). The Victorian BDM (18046/1937) does not state the age. According to reconstructed cemetery records this was one month old child — Also known as B. Amba Khan (reconstructed cemetery records) (Rendle, 2017).—Buried on 14 October 1937 in an unmarked grave in the Methodist section (grave 4–5L) of the Moama general cemetery (Rendle, 2017). The father Galam Hayder Khan, died at Gunbower in 1938.

9. The research was greatly facilitated by the National Library of Australia’s digital historic newspaper archive accessible through the ‘Trove’ database (National Library of Australia, 2016). Search terms used were ‘death / burial / cremation / cremated / pyre’, ‘hawker/s; ‘burial / cemetery’, ‘Sikh / Singh / Hindoo / Hindu / Buddhist / Indian / Afghan,’ as well ‘Riverina’ and specific place names. Once names of deceased hawkers were identified, they were followed up with additional in-depth searching on the name and name variations.

One of the limitations of the Trove search engine is that the searchable data are only as good as the quality of the input. On occasion the print quality of the original newspaper paper is weak, thus providing insufficient contrast, or the type used was dirty (a common issue is that the counters of the letters were filled in with paper and ink grime). Consequently, the optical character recognition does either not work at all returning gibberish, or return erroneous misspelt or misinterpreted results. While much of this has been manually corrected by readers, this tends to hold true only for metropolitan papers for which there is a higher demand.

10. For the data base see NSW Justice (2017).

11. The Victorian register was searched for family names both in the ‘Family Name’ and the ‘Given Name’ fields. Each record was opened up to extract the location of registration and the place of death (which are not included on the summary screen).—For the database see Victoria Justice and Regulation (2017).

12. In addition to the individuals included in the list, there is reference to two additional hawkers killed in the Albury area, namely a hawker driving two white horses, reputedly killed on the road at Jindera gap, northwest of Albury (D. Martin, 1981, p. 181); and a hawker driving an early chain-driven truck, reputedly killed in Wymah Gap (D. Martin, 1981, p. 181). No independent verification could be found. As on other occasions Martin has been shown to be a less than reliable source, these claims need to be read cum grano salis.

36. The following extract from a contemporary newspaper illustrates this nicely: “Putarb Singh, a Hindu, who is well known in the district of Tallangatta (Vic.), has been agitating for some time for the admission into Australia of his brother, Currum Singh, whom he describes as ‘a British subject, living at Lahore.’ The applicant’s solicitor has been informed by the Department of External Affairs ‘that the man cannot be admitted into the Commonwealth unless he passes the dictation test prescribed by the Immigration Restriction Act, which may be applied in any European language, at the discretion of the officer’ (Anonymous, 1911g).

38. The year of birth data have been rounded to the closest five-year interval.
39. The comparison draws on the data for male deaths in single ages for year 1920 (Knibbs, 1921, p. 119), using only ages 28 and up, which conforms with the rounding used for the hawker data.
40. Note that the total numbers do not correlate with the number of cases given in the text and in endnotes 24 and 25. This is caused by the fact that the reporting of the known deaths not always states the age at death.
41. The age at data have been rounded to the closest five-year interval.

45. JINAN SINGH.—“ca 1861, † 8 Jul 1891 at Yellow Creek near Wangaratta (Victoria BDM 1891/12664)(Anonymous, 1891b).—On record as Jinda Singh (Anonymous, 1891b), Jnan Singh (Victoria BDM 1891/12664), Sutchar Singh (Anonymous, 1891a); Juida Singh ((Wangaratta Cemetery Ledger, Seymour, 2017).—Drowned while crossing Yellow Creek at dusk on route from Tarrawinge to Wangaratta (Anonymous, 1891b, 1891c).—Was accompanied by his brother and a third hawker (Anonymous, 1891c).—When his body re-floated on 10 August 1891 and could be recovered, police found in his clothes £12 13/9 in notes and silver and a receipt for £15 which had been sent by money order to India (Anonymous, 1891).—The papers carry no information on the nature and location of his burial.—A Juida Sing is on record as buried in an unmarked grave the Strangers Section (grave 34c) of Wangaratta Cemetery in 10 August 1891 (Wangaratta Cemetery Ledger, Seymour, 2017).

46. YAP SINGH.—† ca 25 Jul 1892 Wangaratta.— on record as buried in an unmarked grave the Strangers Section (grave 34h) of Wangaratta Cemetery on 26 Jul 1892 (Wangaratta Cemetery Ledger, Seymour, 2017).—The newspapers of the day are silent on the nature of the burial or cremation. No information can be found in the Victorian Government Gazette (Victorian Government, 2017).

47. BOOTA SINGH.—*ca 1866, † 18 May 1894 at Royal Hotel, Kerang (Anonymous, 1894d) (Victoria BDM 1894/6309).—died of ‘inflammation of the lungs’ (tuberculosis?) (Anonymous, 1894d).—cremated in an open space past the Kerang cemetery, with ready access to wood (Anonymous, 1894d, 1894h, 1894i, 1894j).—Estate auctioned off on 29 June 1894, comprised of 2 horses, wagonette and ‘general hawker’s goods’ (Yeo, Taverner, & Others, 1894).

48. Name not stated.† 12 Jan 1898.—Died of consumption at Mooroopna hospital.—cremated on the bank of the Goulburn River, near the Shepparton Cemetery. Multiple newspaper references but no details on the individual (Anonymous, 1898d, 1898e, 1898g, 1898f, 1898h, 1898i).

49. LAINA SINGH.—*ca 1853, † 14 July 1898 Mooroopna (Victoria BDM 1898/3969).—left the hospital was found dead in the Goulburn River; the inquest presumed that he committed suicide having drowned himself (Anonymous, 1898b).—Remains cremated on 22 July 1898 at the junction of the Broken River with the Goulburn River, near Mooroopna (Anonymous, 1898b).

50. MOHAMMED KHAN.—*ca 1849, † 30 June 1899 Oakes Flats /Milewa (Vic BDM 11520/1899).—married.—Age reported as 36 (Vic BDM 11520/1899); 50 years.—also on record as ‘Mahomed’ Kahn (Anonymous, 1899q).—Working in the Wangaratta area (Anonymous, 1899a) with a van and a two-horse team (Anonymous, 1899e).—died of carbon monoxide poisoning in his van (Anonymous, 1899e, 1899o, 1899q) while camping at a Mr James Smith’s property at Oakes Flats (Anonymous, 1899e).—The official address of his business, according to signage on his van, was 289 Exhibition Street, Melbourne (Anonymous, 1899o, 1899q).—Taken to Wangaratta for post mortem (Anonymous, 1899e); buried at Wangaratta Cemetery as the first Muslim buried there (Anonymous, 1899a); ceremony officiated by Abdullah Miyan (described as a priest) and Rahim Buksh (described as ‘an educated Indian’ (Anonymous, 1899a, 1899e).—‘There was much ceremony at the grave, and the unusual nature of it, to Christian eyes, attracted a large number of onlookers’ (Anonymous, 1899a).—The death was widely reported (Anonymous, 1899h, 1899e, 1899o, 1899q, 1899r, 1899i, 1899k, 1899n, 1899o, 1899r, 1899q, 1899o).—Died intestate, application made to have estate to be administered by the firm Khuda Buksh Rahim Buksh (Indian merchants) as creditors of Mohammed Khan (Webb, 1899a, 1899b); administration handed to curator of the estates of deceased persons (T.F. Bride, 1900).—In view of an advertisement of August 1896 (“buggy, 4-wheel, traveller’s, with hood, horse and harness, wanted. 289 Exhibition St”) (Anonymous, 1896c) it is likely that Khan, or another hawker, commenced trading at that time.

51. JOW ALLA SINGH.—*ca 1869, † 24 Jul 1899 Yarrawonga (Victoria BDM 1899/11703).—Jowalla Singh to be tried for assault at the Violet Town Police Court (Anonymous, 1899i) with case dismissed at trial, Eileen Deen acting on his behalf (Anonymous, 1899i).—No further information can be found in the newspapers. (Anonymous, 1902c).—Cremated at Temora on 13 October 1902 (Anonymous, 1902e, 1902g, 1902h).

56. Big Davis Singh.—ca 1843, 23 March 1903 Kyabram (Victoria BDM 1903/2239)—father: Big Buhudder Tudi (Victoria BDM 1903/2239); brother Kan Singh (Anonymous, 1903b).—died while retrieving a horse from a channel it had fallen into (Anonymous, 1903e, 1903h, 1903i).—The newspapers are silent on the location and nature of his burial.

57. Fallah Khan.—ca 1840 Jhelem; † 6 June 1904 Chiltern (Victoria BDM 1904/4446)/(Anonymous, 1904c).—"Fallah" (Victoria BDM 1904/4446); "Fatta" (Anonymous, 1896b, 1904b), and "Talla" Khan (Anonymous, 1904c).—Died of pneumonia (Anonymous, 1904c).—reputedly the brother of Behadar (Behada) Khan (Anonymous, 1904c) who accompanied Lord Roberts to Kabul in 1880 (Anonymous, 1904n).—reputedly had a son in the Indian cavalry (Anonymous, 1904b).—Arrived in Victoria about 1862 (Anonymous, 1904c, 1904d).—Khan was the successful tenderer for the lamp lighting contract for Chiltern in 1896 (for 1897) (Anonymous, 1896a, 1896b), and also in 1903 (Anonymous, 1903b, 1903d). The Australian Natives Association strongly opposed the employment of Khan. He is also on record as successful tenderer in 1898 (Anonymous, 1898e), 1900 (Anonymous, 1901e, 1901d), and 1901 (Anonymous, 1901e). In the obituary, the Wodonga and Tawong Sentinel note that "His appointment as lamplighter at Chiltern...was followed by a storm of indignation on the part of local advocates of a 'White Australia'" (Anonymous, 1904i).—Also engaged by Chiltern council to remove and impound stray cattle from the streets (Anonymous, 1898e).—Fatta Khan’s application (in September 1903) to acquire 10 acres of land in section 103 was refused by the Chiltern Land Board (Anonymous, 1903e).—Funeral to be conducted by a Muslim priest, requested by telegram from Melbourne (Anonymous, 1904e).—date of estate order 15 June 1904 (T.F. Bride, 1904, 1905); estate valued at £33/15/9 plus property (Anonymous, 1904b); estate sold on 24 June 1904, comprising a small town block, held under miner’s right, with hut and stables (£6) and adjoining town block, also under miner’s right, with four roomed cottage, stables, etc (£32/10), plus a horse and gig and sundries (Anonymous, 1904d).—sold were allotments 6, 7 and 8A of section N (Anonymous, 1904e).

(Anonymous, 1905f) consummation at Wangaratta Hospital (Victoria BDM 1905/11001); cremated 30 July 1905 at ‘the swamp lands on the Greta Road behind Mrs. Batchelor’s property’ (Anonymous, 1905f).—See also (Anonymous, 1905f, 1905h, 1905j, 1905l, 1905m, 1905n, 1905v).—The ceremony was carried out by Seva Singh.—A cremation of an unnamed Hindu is mentioned in an editorial of 1 December as ‘a few weeks’ after the cremation of Devan Singh in Albury (Anonymous, 1905p).—According to Desmond D. Martin (1969), Chundar ‘Charlie’ Singh was cremated on the old Wangaratta Common at Greta Road site of the trotting club. Martin noted in 1969 that “until a few years ago, a small white fenced enclosure marked the site of Charlie’s funeral pyre” (D. Martin, 1969). No independent verification to the identity of the individual could be found. As on other occasions Martin has been shown to be a less than reliable source, these claims need to be read cum grano salis and that he conflates, or confuses, Sunt Singh’s burial with a Chundar ‘Charlie’ Singh.

59. Devan ‘Dingh’ Singh.—ca 1865, † 16 July 1905 at Albury (Anonymous, 1905c).—(NSW BDM 7866/1905).—ill for six months (at the Albury Hospital) (Anonymous, 1905s); died of tuberculosis (according to death certificate).—Cremation widely reported (Anonymous, 1905h, 1905k) including the publication of two photographs in the Australasian (Anonymous, 1905c).

60. Noor Deen.—ca 1870 † 24 August 1905.—(NSW BDM 7873/1905).—Muslim.—also on record as Nor Deen (Anonymous, 1905b) and Noo Dee (Anonymous, 1922).—died at Albury Hospital (Anonymous, 1905m) as a result of injuries sustained when his hawker’s wagon rolled over his back on Kentucky Station (ca 30 miles from Corowa). Taken to Albury Hospital nothing could be done (Anonymous, 1905s).—The newspapers are quiet on the location of his burial.—The undertaker records (Anonymous, 1922p) show that he was buried on 28 August 1905 in the Methodist section of the Albury Cemetery. The unmarked grave (Methodist Section N° 1; plan 6, row D, plot no 36)/(Albury Cemetery database n° 34,139) is located at the northern edge of the section.—Estate auctioned 25 September 1905 (Anonymous, 1905g), comprised of hawker’s wagonette, two horses and harness.

The cremation attracted a large gathering of Europeans (Anonymous, 1905d, 1905u). Permission for the cremation had been obtained by telegram from the Minister of Justice (Anonymous, 1905u).—The advertisement for the sale of his estate lists “1 large hawker’s van, 1 set of double van harnesses, 2 horses and stock-in-trade of a hawker, including drapery, clothing, hats, boots and fancy goods” (Blackmore, 1905).—Probate 23 January 1906 (Garrett, 1906).

62. Cushla Singh.—† 17 September 1907 at the Mooroopna hospital.—on record as labourer of Aridmona (T.F. Bride, 1907).—on record as Cushla Singh (Anonymous, 1907b); Cushala Singh (T.F. Bride, 1907).—cremated at the Goulburn River, on the site of the (then) new Shepparton race course (Anonymous, 1907c, 1907h, 1907i). Owing to the short supply of fuel, the spectacle was a somewhat gruesome one’ (Anonymous, 1907i).

63. CHANDAIL SINGH.—*ca 1857, † 7 April 1907 at Temora.—On record as Chanda Singh (NSW BDM 6756/1907), Chunda Singh (Anonymous, 1907o), Chunder Singh (Anonymous, 1907n).—Committed suicide by hanging himself in an outhouse of Cheer Singh’s store (Anonymous, 1907o) (Anonymous, 1907n).—Cremated (Anonymous, 1907n).

64. MEHAN RUSHEN.—† 15 July 1907 near The Rock.—Father Chanan Rushen, Mother Rahmat (NSW BDM 9710/1907).—also on record ‘Meean Roosan’ (Anonymous, 1907u) and Abdallah Singh (Anonymous, 1907u).—died of heart disease at ‘French Park Railway Station,’ body taken to Lockhart (Anonymous, 1907u).

In 1928 Gharne Singh temporarily went back to India (Anonymous, 1935e), where he married Sham Kour (Kur), also known as Shamoo Jwar Rami, daughter of Jawahar Singh of Dadja (Anonymous, 1935m). The Singh’s returned to Australia in February 1929 aboard RMS Malaga (Anonymous, 1929b).

Their first child, Frederick ‘Freddie’ Darra Singh, was born at Lockhart on 13 June 1930. (Anonymous, 1930b; Buedges, 1935a). Two more sons followed, William ‘Billy’ Khartara Singh (3 March 1932) (Buedges, 1935c) and James ‘Jimmy’ Sirdaradar (24 February 1934) (Buedges, 1935b; Mitchell, 1935).—After Gharne’s death, Sham Kour, with her three children, returned to India on 22 October 1935 aboard RMS Narkunda and lived at Old Rest House, Moga Town, District of Ferozepur, Punjab (Anonymous, 1935f). As the Singh’s three sons had been born in Australia, they were entitled for re-entry ten years after departure (Maddison, 1939).

Reputedly came to Australia as a wrestler, then turned hawker and later farmer (Anonymous, 1935d, 1935m). Before settling down as a farmer at Brookdale he demonstrated dumbbell exercises and club swinging (Anonymous, 1935e), for example at the boxing carnivals in Henty in 1915 (Anonymous, 1915d), and Culcaim in 1916 (Anonymous, 1916f).

Farmer at Brookdale (Anonymous, 1935n) or Pine Grove (Anonymous, 1922) or Bullenborg, The Rock (Anonymous, 1922d); Bullenborg-road, The Rock (Symonds, 1919a, p. 3279).—Reputedly stopped the wearing of a turban, but wore a European-style hat (Anonymous, 1951d, 1951f).

In 1912 Gharne Singh lists his Savings Bank account book as lost and requests that the finder contact Nicholas Abikhair (Anonymous, 1912j).—granted a hawker’s license for 1915 by the Henty Police Court (Anonymous, 1914a).

Gharne Singh acquired section 1, lot 7 (1 acre) in Henty; street address 485 Keighran Street, today part of Myoora Village 2-4 Allan Street; purchase 1903-4049 on 19 January 1903, purchased for £17/10 on a three-year payment term as after action purchase, initially offered at auction on 23 December 1902 (Anonymous, 1902d; Crick, 1903).

In February 1917 Gharne Singh, then formally resident at Henty, bought a 500 acre property at Milbrulong (Portion 56, Parish of Osborne) “at a very high figure” (Anonymous, 1917r). In 1918 Singh, with an address at Bullenborg Road, The Rock, registered his brand for both cattle and horses (Symonds, 1919a, p. 3279; 1919b, p. 3719; 1919c, p. 3827) and a year later he requested a re-evaluation of the property value (and thus the annual rental payments) (Anonymous, 1919f). Allegedly careless conduct when burning off of 100 acres of wild oats in May 1917 set off a bushfire that affected a neighbouring property causing £200 to £250 worth of damage. For this he was fined £10 with £1/18 costs (Anonymous, 1922c, 1922r). Involved in a law suit (v. J.P. Smithenbecker) over the sale of 100 sheep in 1922 (Anonymous, 1922, 1922n, 1922q).

Contracted pneumonia in January 1935 (Anonymous, 1935b). Gharne Singh was cremated on 25 January 1935 by Sundah Singh and Curram Singh at his farm at Brookdale (Anonymous, 1935b). Present were also Rule Singh, Nutta Singh, Pellah Singh and Patarab Singh (Anonymous, 1935c). Whereas the newspaper reported that the ashes would be collected and sent to India to be thrown into the Ganges (Anonymous, 1935f, 1935s), his widow requested that the bones (two bags) be thrown into the nearest river, i.e. the Murray (Anonymous, 1935f). Menuing Yarragundy Lagoon for the river (Anonymous, 1935g), or because the river could not be reached due to flooding (Anonymous, 1935e) the bags were deposited in Yarragundry Lagoon. When the lagoon’s water levels dropped, the bags were exposed and caused major concern among the residents and police (Anonymous, 1935g).

149. SAHIB DAD.—*ca 1858; † 9 April 1948 Wagga Wagga (Anonymous, 1948c).—Muslim.—

Married to Annie Dad, widowed Wheatley, née Kelly (Anonymous, 1933d); her son Percival Roy “Wheeler” Wheatley (*1912) was killed by lightning on 14 Jan 1938 (Anonymous, 1938b); at least two daughters, Beg(an) Sahib Dad and Bebe Sahib Dad (Anonymous, 1933d).

On record as Sahib Dad (Anonymous, 1948c); Sahibad (Anonymous, 1908g).

In Wagga district since the early 1890s (Anonymous, 1948h). Sahib Dad is on record as farming at Pullitop since 1913 (Symonds, 1914, p. 2288).—On record as leasing 685 of his 700 acres at Pullitop to a John Wise of Buarowa on 8 May 1919 for grazing purposes (and retaining 15 acres as a fowl run) with a rent of £300 for three months (Anonymous, 1919e). Sahib Dad, acquired 680 acres in the Parish of Pullotop (settlement purchase 1920-70, plan M3051-1888); for boundaries, see Department of Lands (1924); ran sheep in 1920 (Symonds, 1920, p. 119). An attempt to sell his land in June 1924 (Box, 1924) did not gain the approval of the Minister of Lands (Anonymous, 1925k).—notice regarding stray steer in August 1924 (Dad, 1924).

In October 1935 Sahib Dad instructed his lawyers to petition the Commonwealth for his 24-year-old nephew Fozol Mohd to be permitted immigrant to assist in on his farm as he was ageing (Sheekey & Co, 1935). The request was declined (Secretary Department of the Interior, 1935). At the time, Sahib Dad still owed £2036 (with annual instalments at £250 pa) (Inspector of Police Wagga Wagga, 1935). His property, on which he employed two men all year round, provided him with an annual income of well under £250 pa (Inspector of Police Wagga Wagga, 1935).

In 1945 Sahib Dad’s property was reputedly still owned by (presumably mortgaged to) the Union Bank of Australia but occupied by Dad (Tully, 1945).—Farm clearing sale announced for his property at Burandana as he was giving up farming due to ill-health (Angel & Sons, 1946).

Sahib Dad 9 April 1948 Wagga Wagga (Anonymous, 1948e), buried on 12 April 1948 in the general section of Wagga Wagga cemetery, where ‘Mohammedan rites were observed’ (Anonymous, 1948a, 1948b, 1948f).—Will 29 May 1939.—Probate application 15 April 1948 (Sheekey, Reynolds, & Co, 1948).
